Perjury Fills Bank Probes, Solon Claims

McClellan Says Attorney General To Get Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John L. McClellan said testimony on bank failures before his Senate subcommittee "is bulging with perjury."

McClellan, chairman of the subcommittee, said he was immediately transmitting the testimony to the Justice Department and asking the attorney general to quickly take appropriate action.

CONFFLICT SHOCKING

"I can't say who is guilty," McClellan said. "The conflict is so shocking — it is so apparent that somebody is lying."

"We have listened to wilful statements that are false. These statements are pertinent to this inquiry."

To date, the subcommittee has heard a detailed testimony on the closings of the San Francisco National Bank and the First National Bank of Marlin, Tex. The San Francisco bank was shut down Jan. 22 and the Marlin bank closed March 10, 1964.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okl., also said that the hearings clearly showed a need for closer administrative and legislative scrutiny of interrelated corporations and banks, and dealings among them.

McClellan and Harris made the statements after a Senate investigator testified before the permanent investigating subcommittee that two Negro financiers drained $446,000 from two Texas banks they controlled.

One of the banks, the First National Bank of Marlin, Tex., failed last year. The other, the Mainland Bank and Trust Co. of Texas City, was sold and now apparently is in sound condition.

Jerome Adler, staff counsel for the Senate rackets subcommittee which is looking into recent bank failures, questioned Bernard S. Garrett at Friday's committee hearing. Garrett and his partner, Joseph B. Morris, blamed much of their trouble on white men.

Garrett did not dispute Adlerman's figures showing that Garrett and Morris borrowed $247,000 from the Mainland Bank; received a $189,000 commission for some risky notes sold to the Marlin Bank; and received another $10,000 in fees from two companies which borrowed money for the Texas City Bank.

But Garrett denied accusations that he and Morris set up two companies in a "common scheme . . . to milk both these banks for a profit."

"I wanted to keep that bank forever . . . to build it for my son," Garrett said.

Steel Contract Still Far Away After 4th Week

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Basic steel negotiators ended their fourth week of renewed contract bargaining Friday with both sides apparently wide apart.

With less than a month to go before the union's May 1 strike deadline, no agreement has been reported on anything but the most minor plant-level problems.

"They gave us an electric fan," said a negotiator for the United Steelworkers Union local bargaining with U.S. Steel Corp.'s National Tube Division, meaning not much has been accomplished.

In other company-level talks involving the 11 major steel producers progress reports differed. In some, union negotiators said they had almost cleared up a big backlog of local problems. Others said they've gotten nowhere.

There was one session Friday of the top-level committee that is bargaining over wages and other key demands in the industrywide contract.

The 12-man committee recessed for the weekend without comment from either side.

A union spokesman said subcommittee's probably would work over the weekend on aspects of the union's economic package that was presented Monday and Tuesday.

The package, which would cost the companies more than $1 an hour over the next three years, presents the biggest hurdle for negotiators.

Would Rival F111 Britain, France To Link Forces On New Aircraft

PARIS (AP) — Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson and French President Charles de Gaulle neared agreement Friday on joint French-British production of a variable sweep plane to rival the American F111.

In London, the British government set off a political bombshell by disclosing abandonment of its multi-billion dollar, go it alone development program for such a plane.

Soaring costs were given by British informants for the "drop it" decision.

Although the two leaders appeared to be in agreement on a joint plane-building program — continuing the precedent set by work on the Concorde supersonic passenger aircraft — they seemed still far apart on most global issues.

This was especially true of the war in Viet Nam, French informants said.

More Storms Press Down On California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California, doused by a fast series of Pacific storms following one of the driest winters on record, learned Friday that more are on the way.

As the weatherman describes it, the usually balmy area now is at the end of a giant alley — a trough of cold air down which storms are rolling from Canada.

They started thundering on Wednesday and since have left up to five inches of rain in some areas and three feet of snow in the mountains.

Some people like it, some don't. For skiers and most farmers it's great. But for those who live in areas prone to mud and flood, and for those accustomed to sport outdoors under sunny skies, the clouds have no silver lining.

Even among those wanting moisture, the sentiment is: "Too much, too late." If farmers and winter resort operators could have their druthers, they'd have taken it bit by bit throughout the winter.

The rain came one day after the governor had interrupted a flight to Washington and turned back to make a personal inspection of the bomb-damaged home.

Mrs. Cross wrote the World and News-Star that her husband found the dog on South Lakeshore Drive, which is near Cross Lake, last Saturday.

"By asking at several places, we believe the dog belongs to someone in your city," Mrs. Cross wrote.

If you've lost this kind of dog and believe this might be it, you can call Mrs. Cross at 631-3831 in Shreveport.

To House Probers

Road Practices In 1950's Bared

WASHINGTON (Special) — Two Shreveport men who were state highway inspectors in the late 1950's told House investigators Friday that fake sample reports and false "haul tickets" for non-existent gravel were a common practice.

J. E. Smith, now a technician at the district four highway laboratory, and Billy Ray Bryant, who quit the department about 1960, said the practices were widespread but have since been corrected.

Bryant told the House federal aid highway subcommittee he was once told by a contractor to get off the job he was inspecting when he noticed roadbed gravel was mostly clay.

When Bryant protested, the unidentified contractor said "that I was costing him money." Bryant said he left but after the contractor conferred with Alfred E. Simpson of Shreveport, then the project engineer for the job, the work continued.

The incident occurred on a road improvement project south of Logansport, Bryant said. Several different contractors worked on this project.

Subcommittee counsel Walter May observed that one section built in 1957 for about $300,000 deteriorated so badly that it had to be rebuilt in 1960 for another $140,000.

Smith testified that inspectors were so overworked at times that it was impossible to check construction and do necessary paper work in addition to testing of road material.

He said he was told by Ben Barnes, then the No. 2 engineer for district four, "not to send in failing samples." After that, he either "sweetened" samples of roadbed material with extra rock or made out test reports at home without looking at the road.

To save additional time, he said he often filled out advance haul tickets which are issued to show that gravel, asphalt or other materials are actually put in place. Books of these tickets with his signature were sometimes given to other inspectors when Smith was called to a different project. The carbon copies of the tickets were used as a basis of payment to contractors.

"They're just like blank checks," remarked May.

Testimony established that contractors were permitted to overrun original estimates of needed gravel by five per cent without explanation. In case after case May stated, the average was exactly 4.8 per cent.

He read a statement by an unidentified assistant project engineer who incurred $270 expenses for his car while working on a state project and paid a $90 hospital bill for one of his inspectors who developed a fungus infection on the job.

Instead of being reimbursed by the state, he collected the $360 in cash from the contractor and wrote out the equivalent in haul tickets on fictional gravel which the contractor could collect on.

He said one inspector was told to write out phony tickets on $850.50 worth of hot mix asphalt to cover the contractor's cost of a barrel of carbon tetrachloride solvents used to test surfacing material.

He later learned that a barrel of solvent costs less than $100.

Smith said an important step in making density tests involved pouring sand in the hole from which the sample material is removed to determine the volume. He said equipment for doing this precisely was available in the Shreveport highway office but inspectors in the field were never told. The tests, when done at all, were seldom accurate, he said.

Smith stated that in the last few years a double check system on haul tickets makes forgeries impossible and laboratory tests conform to more rigid standards.

Bryant told of seeing a culvert excavation on the Logansport project filled with "clay mud" instead of tamped earth. As a result, he said, the road caved in on both sides of the culvert. Rep. James C. Cleveland, (R) N.H. expressed surprise when told there was little public outcry when new roads began to deteriorate soon after completion.

Wreck Kills Two At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Two persons died in a flaming two-car crash east of here Thursday night.

The dead were George W. Knickerbocker, 37, of Odessa,

THE REVOLVER in actor Frank Swindle's hand is the reason for the interrogation in this scene from "Ten Little Indians," being presented tonight and Sunday night at the Monroe Little Theatre. Claude Fuller, center, suspects that this gun is the murder weapon in the suspense-filled Agatha Christie mystery. On the left is Hugh Matthews, another lead character in the play. Performance time is 8:15 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse. Night performances will also be given on April 8-10, with a matinee set for April 11. Tickets may be obtained by telephoning the box office at 323-1235.

Special Easter Events Today

The Greater Monroe Downtown Association will feature a special Easter promotion today with the theme, "Downtown is Easter Avenue."

The event is being held by local merchants to promote Easter shopping.

Models will parade in the stores and windows between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. displaying spring's newest Easter fashions.

Live Easter bunnies will be on hand in the downtown area to give out candy and favors to all the children.

Leading Monroe florists will display some of their outstanding creations in DeSiard Street windows. The street will also be lined with flowers.

Each store will also hold its own form of Easter promotion.

Suspense Drama No April Fooler

By JOHN CALE
Staff Critic

There's no April fooling in the fact that Agatha Christie can make any night "a fine night for a murder"—certainly when she writes one for the stage.

Little Theatre's choice of her "Ten Little Indians" proved an appropriate change of pace from farces and musicals, and Friday's first nighters for the event gave cast and director well-earned applause after the suspense-filled final act.

NEW NEEDLE

Before we get down to the analysis of Miss Christie's skillfully written play, let's pass on a few credits to the technical staff of the local production. Someone apparently found some new wires, needles, tubes, tapes and speakers—and put them to good use.

Everything from the sea gulls in the fog to the slow movement of Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony (we hope we heard correctly) came through much better than in past efforts.

Set work was expertly designed and carried out. The storm scene in the latter part of Act II was particularly realistic right down to the wind-whipped draperies.

None of these items can make a good play out of a bad one. But they serve to put an audience at ease so it can look into the finer points of the action on stage—rather than feel it must somehow "help" with the show.

REAL THRILLER

Playwright Christie set out on a new pattern for "Ten Little Indians." The setting is on a small island off the coast of Devon, England, named—appropriately enough—Indian Island.

As the title suggests, murders occur in countdown fashion from 10, so instead of getting a "whodunit" mystery, it's more of a "who's doing it" question.

Of course, the march of 10 actors onstage in Act I called for a rather lengthy exposition, especially since the manner of the British mystery calls for each to be somewhat of an individual in his own right.

We feel that the opening night performance displayed a bit of the straight line here; not exactly flat, but not paced exactly well either.

We've heard the question, "Whom shall we invite?" when a party is mentioned, but in this case, the question finally arrived at is, "Who invited us out here?" Somehow this is the question that must be arrived at with a greater measure of impact before the blood-curdling scream that announces the ascending action. No doubt, Director Lonny Fraze has the answer to that one and will play it to best advantage as the large cast grows more accustomed to working together.

CHARACTERS

Have you read any of these British short novels and mysteries lately? Say, they're full of character studies. Any of the 10 "Indians" in this play are likely characters, even though it dates from the 1940's.

There was a Bible-reading moralist, played by Jo Brian—a Little Theatre veteran who is as accustomed to the stage boards under her feet as she is the floorboards of her kitchen or automobile. So self-righteous was she until we were certain she was the killer... until circumstances knocked our theory into "file 13."

The heavy roles—they lived longer—were handled by Beryl Franklin, Claude Fuller, Frank Swindle, Ralph J. Coleman and Grace Michele.

This was the ensemble that managed to build up due suspense for the final act.

Generally speaking, "Ten Little Indians" is a good mystery and one that was well received by the opening night audience. Aside from a couple of slow spots in the first two acts, we see no reason why it won't knit together as a real suspense—thriller during the subsequent performances.

In seven out of eight families there is both a husband and a wife. Most of the remaining families are headed by women—typically widows with young children—and some by widowers or single men with dependents.

Bond Money Use Revealed

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Gov. John McKeithen made public Friday how the final $20 million of his $35 million bond program will be spent.

The announcement came after the state Bond and Building Commission allocated the first $14,841,123 earlier in the day.

The governor, in a sudden second news conference of the day, said he was announcing plans for the $20 million to offset fears of officials and others who thought they were being left out.

McKeithen said he received a flood of complaints, after the morning allocations were announced.

The commission next Thursday will put priorities on the final bond money for projects McKeithen said totalled $20,- 38.830.

Another $6,754,514 in federal aid is anticipated for the projects, with an anticipated $2 million extra in student fees, this would mean a total $29,113,344 in new spending.

In commission action Friday morning, Louisiana State University got the lion's share, $8,- 910,123, including money for the main campus here, LSU in New Orleans, LSU at Alexandria, and new LSU branches at Shreveport and Eunice.

The tentative allocations to be made for the remaining $10 million in capital outlay, plus expected federal funds include:

Louisiana State University: Main campus, $8,750,000; medical school, science classroom for Shreveport branch, $800,000, plus $400,000 in federal funds; $750,000 in federal funds.

Northwestern State: Science classroom, $1,750,000, plus $500,000 in federal funds.

LSU: Main campus building, $58,000, plus $1,314 in federal funds.

Grambling College: Classroom, $750,000, plus $500,000 in federal funds.

Southeastern Louisiana College: Science classroom, $800,000, plus $400,000 in federal funds.

McNeese State: Laundry and concession building, $50,000, plus $1 million in federal funds.

Isaac DeGardo Trade School: New Orleans: $450,000.

E. K. Long Hospital: Baton Rouge: Site development, sun screen, infirmary unit, $228,000, plus $228,000 in federal funds.

Huey P. Long Hospital: Pineville: New addition plus new receiving area, $825,000, plus $252,000 in federal funds.

E. K. Conway Hospital: Monroe: Addition to main building, repairs, $900,000, plus $900,000 in federal funds.

Louisiana State Penitentiary: Independence: New water line, $62,000, plus $62,000 for doctors' and interns' dorms.

East Louisiana Hospital: Jackson: renovated Negro buildings, $30,000, plus new lavatory.

College For Everybody?

Logan Wilson, president of the American Council on Education, recently told a conference of college presidents and deans in Chicago that "there is no validity whatsoever in the 'everybody must go to college notion.'"

What Wilson said, which surely contains a great deal of truth, helped to bring into focus a question over which there has been growing controversy in recent months. There are great numbers of people who believe almost anyone can benefit by "exposure" to a college education.

Wilson stated that, to the contrary, institutions of higher learning must fix priorities on what they will offer and who shall be accepted to benefit from it. He stated:

"Colleges must guard against the potential waste in the 'multi-university' status, where a monstrous reach and wide-open door can lead to mediocrity and clutter."

On the statistical chart, Wilson has much to support him. Of every 100 persons, at least 20 have IQ's of between 70 and 80, which indicates they are unsuited for higher learning. Of the remainder, 46 cannot qualify for "status" schools but can benefit from college training. Those left are in the "superior" class and are qualified for postgraduate work.

Wilson's comments are timely in that they coincide with a preliminary research report on students recently released by the Oklahoma Board of Regents for Higher Education. The board has projected a series of studies of 13,000 Oklahoma students in 32 colleges — public and private — on which it intends to keep a close eye for six years.

Initial findings were somewhat startling. Forty-two per cent of students who enrolled as freshmen were lost. Some transferred to other institutions but the net dropout rate was 35.8 per cent.

Studies made in Oklahoma may be more pertinent than in some states because of Oklahoma's legislative edict which requires the state's public colleges to accept all enrollees. It was stated that if students had been required to meet the standards of the American College Testing program, 27.7 per cent of the 1962 freshmen would not have been accepted.

Wilson's call for quality and not quantity and the views of the board of regents seem to indicate that if everybody must go to college, we must prepare for much economic waste and very little benefit, for a sizeable segment of those who enroll are incapable of doing the work and drop out.

Solvents' Big Program

One of the biggest assets for agriculture and business throughout the United States and even in a good many foreign countries is located at and near the town of Sterlington, in Ouachita Parish, which lies some 16 miles north of Monroe. Products of Commercial Solvents Corporation already are of vast importance in many aspects of business and agriculture. Now the firm is launching a $10,000,000, "far-reaching program of modernization, expansion and technological advancements," which will mean much to the Northeast Louisiana area.

At its Sterlington production center, the company will build a new anhydrous ammonia plant with a capacity of 1,000 tons a day, or about 340,000 tons a year. It will increase and modernize its Sterlington methanol production with new facilities which will raise methanol output by 15,000,000 million gallons a year.

The new plant for making ammonia, a basic chemical source of nitrogen for agricultural plant foods and industrial chemicals, will rank with the largest and most advanced in existence or

Art By Taxation

Every taxpayer will be a patron of the arts unless some developments in Washington are brought to a halt, as they should be.

The proposal that the Federal Government subsidize the arts keeps bobbing up, and it has a better chance than ever in this Congress. Art is worthy, by and large, but this is hardly enough justification for paying for it out of our withholding taxes from our paychecks.

The art our public wish to pay under construction in the nation. It will incorporate the newest engineering technology for the efficient use of the energy to produce anhydrous ammonia at a lower cost. Planning of the new facilities began a year ago. Design work is under way, construction is scheduled to start by mid-year and full-scale operations are projected by the end of 1966.

The ammonia and methanol projects are the latest in a series of related steps being taken in the company's new five-year, $100,000,000 growth and development program.

Because natural gas is the principal raw material used in making ammonia and methanol, Commercial Solvents has greatly increased its gas-field holdings and has made plans for drilling about 120 additional gas wells in the Monroe gas field of Northeast Louisiana.

Products of Commercial Solvents are of tremendous importance throughout the world. The company's operations constitute a mighty force in our economy. We have great reason to be proud of this corporation.

for, they may now pay for. And millions upon millions are spent voluntarily each year on literature, music, paintings, opera, theater and architecture. What we are being asked to do essentially is to buy out of tax money the art that nobody is willing to buy voluntarily.

The proposition that anyone who considers himself an artist is entitled to high living standards at public expense is a foolish one.

Civil Rights Demonstrations

BASCOM TIMMONS

Pressure Government Rises

Shown In Happenings In Alabama

Pressure government has attained increased stature as a result of recent happenings in Alabama, and those which preceded it in support of elimination of racial voting barriers.

Until Negroes hit upon the power of demonstration to bring their demands to the attention of Congress, any such attempt to exert pressure on the nation's legislative body had failed of its object, at least for the time being. Though the Negro groups have not staged their new march on Washington, they promise to do so within the next few weeks, which may be about the time that the voting registration law now under consideration is up for passage.

Previous marches on Washington have been chiefly important for the news stories they provided, from Coxey's army in 1894 to the bonus army in 1931. They and others have failed completely in their purpose, which was to persuade Congress to act on legislation they advocated.

A BONUS BILL for the veterans of World War I was passed later, but the bonus army had no connection with that, having been thoroughly rebuked when Congress voted against the earlier bill while the veterans marched around the Capitol Plaza.

All that is history now. The march on Washington of civil rights advocates in 1963 was a well managed movement, not designed to force immediate action, though the bill they supported was then before Congress and was enacted in 1964, after Lyndon B. Johnson became president.

The question now asked here is whether the pressure now being exerted by racial organizations may not become a precedent for all sorts of movement crusades and mass demands.

That is something to think about for the future, but for the present, some important figures in government are wondering whether the extent to which the pressure is now being applied, and the manner of its application, will not harm the mass protagonists in the long run.

THE LEADERS OF the civil rights organizations say "No" because they are on the verge of obtaining what they seek, i.e. a voting rights bill more sweeping than any legislation thought possible at the beginning of this Congress. The strong backing of the Johnson administration, designed to strike while the iron is hot, is responsible for the support of both northern Democrats and Republicans, and voting rights under a federal registrar in allegedly recalcitrant communities are now apparently assured.

The fact remains that all of this pressure is being exerted in behalf of a racial group comprising approximately 10 per cent of U. S. population. That it is succeeding so completely is due to acceptance by a majority of the other 90 per cent of to the leadership of the group itself, which has been in some instances highly annoying to heads of government from the president down.

Often the aftermath of battle is grimmer when the shouting stops, and those who are most immediately concerned by the establishment of the new rights and privileges are able to emerge from the turmoil and assume some authority. That was the case in the South of reconstruction days, when even the federal government was unable to sustain the rights granted emancipated Negroes after a temporary period of equal rights.

NO RECURRENCE of the developments of that reconstruction period is either anticipated or likely, for the authority of the federal government now, with the Supreme Court in firm support of its powers is more effective than it was in earlier times.

What seems likely to matter most is the attitude of both sides in the new equality set-up now being worked out. Those who have opposed desegregation are still important in their communities, and their resentment may be manifest for some time. On the other hand, the beneficiaries of the new laws, by their attitude and by their effort to help create a new environment have a great responsibility in bringing about after a trial period a type of society which may not be great after the Johnson pattern, but will at least be more liveable as time goes on.

Their leaders will still be important, but if they abide by the notion that the kind of pressure they have made successful use of in the present crisis can be revived to meet their desires, that can bring strong reminders that they are a minority group, now being given the opportunity to fit into the national way of life, but with no special rights or privileges.

"Hear my prayer, O Lord, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears; for I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were." Psalms 39:12

When we get down to real prayer, relief will come. "The fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

We are reportable to God as to how we treat others. "If ye do unto one of the least of these unto me."

RALPH DE TOLEDANO Australia Ally And Good Friend

SINCE WORLD War II, the word "ally" has acquired some dubious shades of meaning. Pro-Soviet propagandists kept telling us that the Kremlin was our "ally" — while the Communists cut our throats in Eastern Europe and refused to acknowledge billions in Lend-Lease aid. Today, France is our ally, but it would be hard to believe this simply by observing President de Gaulle's flight to Moscow. At every turn, our "allies" are showing us their esteem by kicking us sharply in the shins.

The United States, however, does have some allies that are also friends. Most notable among these is Australia, though that nation could easily point to a series of actions by the Kennedy-Johnson Administration which worked contrary to Australia's — and the free world's — interests. Repeatedly we have turned our back on those in the Southeast Asian complex who are for us in favor of Laotian neutrals and Indonesia Communists.

The Australians are genuinely fond of Americans. Their own incredibly brave troops have fought side by side with our own men. They recall that we bled the British nose once, though nearly two centuries ago, and they may consider this an earnest of our good will. Unlike, others, the Australians do not hate us because we are their allies. Now, at a time when many countries are busily stirring up trouble against all things American, the Australian government has demonstrated its friendship concretely.

The Australians are genuinely fond of Americans. Their own incredibly brave troops have fought side by side with our own men. They recall that we bled the British nose once, though nearly two centuries ago, and they may consider this an earnest of our good will. Unlike, others, the Australians do not hate us because we are their allies. Now, at a time when many countries are busily stirring up trouble against all things American, the Australian government has demonstrated its friendship concretely.

A GOOD FRIEND of mine in the Australian Embassy has sent me a press release which bears this out. The content of that release is news to me and if it appeared in the papers, it was nowhere near page one. This is understandable.

Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies, under pressure from a number of Australian Anglican bishops to call for negotiations in Viet Nam, has answered them in a manner which should be copied by some of our honorable Senators. Sir Robert made it clear that, like all men of heart and principle, he was all for peace. But he held that realism required certain prerequisites for negotiation. Among these was "some reasonable assurance" that the aggressors meant what they were saying and weren't using negotiation as a Trojan Horse.

The Geneva agreements of 1954, signed by the Communists to guarantee the territorial integrity of South Viet Nam and other threatened nations in Southeast Asia are guaranteed by more than the "promises of the Soviet Union and the Chinese Communists."

The possibility of an understanding with the Communists in Asia, Sir Robert says, "will come all the sooner the sooner aggression is met by resistance ... Freedom is, in this world, not expendable."

These are generous and heartening words and should have been widely broadcast by the American press and the small army of government "publicists." They show that friendship does exist among nations, even though the neo-isolationists want us to abandon the free world to the Communist imperialists. The United States and its diplomats have failed because they have tried to woo enemies with cash while ignoring those ready to stand at our side in the greatest conflict this old earth has known.

BARRY GOLDWATER

Payment Balance Serious Problem

"OF ALL THE problems before President Johnson — including the war in Viet Nam — the balance of payments is the most serious."

These words, spoken recently by William McChesney Martin Jr., Federal Reserve Board chairman, underscore a growing alarm in official circles over the loss of American gold and the stability of the dollar.

In Martin's view, the problem has now assumed the proportions of a national emergency, one which has been growing steadily over the years because of a continued deficit in our international balance of payments.

Only once in the last 15 years — in 1957 — has the United States earned more credits abroad than it had exported. The outgo is accounted for by imported goods, foreign-aid funds, dollar investments overseas, money spent overseas on the armed forces and American tourist spending abroad, creating an overbalance of $27 billion.

Our gold reserve, therefore, is threatened by foreign governments which have amassed U.S. dollars and short-term liabilities.

These can be redeemed in gold at the discretion of the foreign governments, and there is an increasing tendency, particularly on the part of France, to do just that as international confidence in the stability of the dollar begins to sag.

THE AMOUNT OF our short-term liabilities to foreigners, which can be demanded in gold, have increased from $12.6 billion to more than $26 billion in the past 10 years. During the same period our total gold holdings have decreased from $21.8 billion to $15.1 billion. Thus, if every foreign government holding our short-term paper should demand redemption in gold, it would wipe out the American gold reserve.

Against this growing problem, the administration is concentrating on temporary, stop-gap expedients and heavy appeals to business and the public for voluntary restraints.

In the field of legislation, the approach is to repeal the existing 25 per cent gold reserve requirement to back up the deposit liabilities of Federal Reserve banks.

This would help temporarily, providing the step does not cause a further loss of confidence in the dollar.

AN IMPORTANT KEY to the entire situation is the attitude of foreign governments toward our currency. Ordinarily, foreign governments do not demand gold for more than a very small portion of their holdings in short-term liabilities. As long as they have confidence in the value of the dollar they are content to hold the liabilities as a current service funds. But if their confidence sags too low it could cause a run on U.S. gold reserves.

In all of this, the administration is overlooking the obvious moves needed to shore up foreign respect for the American dollar. What the holders of our short-term liabilities are looking for is a new measure of fiscal responsibility on the part of our government. They want to see us make a serious effort to achieve a balanced budget and begin making systematic reductions in our phenomenal national debt.

When a nation is confronted with a balance of payments situation as serious as the one facing the United States, continued and heavy deficit financing makes no sense at all. Foreign concern over this determined policy and its inflationary effects has been repeatedly impressed upon American officials. But so far to no avail.

Of course, there is no disposition on the part of the administration to call a halt to deficit financing at a time when President Johnson's Great Society program is just getting started. Instead, the outlook is for more government spending than this country has ever before experienced. The effect on the stability of the dollar will be long and lasting, and we can look forward to recurrent financial crises as one monetary gimmick after another is exhausted in an ineffectual effort to halt the gold outflow.

Still Likes Highways

Governor Warm On Poverty Plan

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. McKeithen displayed a sweetened attitude Friday toward President Johnson's anti-poverty program, although he said he still preferred building highways.

And he called for Louisiana citizens to show Vice President Hubert Humphrey the full respect due his office in a visit here next week.

Humphrey will speak to a Friday session of the Louisiana AFL-CIO convention. The governor will introduce him.

The governor held a news conference in which he gave these views, and he presented two beauty queens and "Smoky the Bear" with colonel's commissions.

McKeithen had said earlier he couldn't get too excited about the anti-poverty program during economic boom times for Louisiana.

But he told his news conference he was surprised at the good response he found in north Louisiana to the program, when he had felt this area opposed it earlier.

McKeithen credited anti-poverty State Director Champ Baker with explaining the program so it could be understood better.

The change in the governor's attitude may indicate peace-making moves between the state and the federal government. They have been deadlocked over McKeithen appointees to the state office who have been under federal investigation. The federal government has withheld funds for support of the state office staff.

McKeithen recently made a trip to Washington, and came back telling of an unpleasant meeting with Sargent Shriver, national director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which handles the anti-poverty program.

On April 1, the state office payroll was reduced to provide for only two of the original eight employees. This left only Director Baker and a stenographer.

McKeithen said deputy Director Shelby M. Jackson and others on the state office staff were in something of a "quasi-resignation, dismissal or layoff." He said they hadn't been fired but were off the payroll because no more money could be spent without federal assurance it would be reimbursed.

The governor revealed as been drawing from a special $100,000 governor's fund to meet salaries and expenses of the state office, expecting eventual reimbursement. The governor appointed staff members under federal law.

In his Washington meeting with Shriver, McKeithen said he asked the federal director "to give me some kind of criteria to go by" in making appointments.

He said he tried without success to find out who was unacceptable and why among staff members, so he could take action.

McKeithen is scheduled to speak to the Louisiana AFL-CIO convention here Monday, when the labor organization begins a weeklong session that will include speeches by three Cabinet members and other dignitaries.

McKeithen said he will extend the vice president every courtesy due his office, as he did earlier for President Johnson.

He hopes, he said, that Louisiana will "demonstrate to the people of the world that — although we disagree with him — here in the South we can show him true Southern hospitality and the respect that is due the office which he holds."

He urged Louisiana people to "show we don't lie down in the streets and block traffic . . . and carry on that kind of clapping."

The governor said he didn't believe proposed new bond issues to be offered the Fiscal Legislature next month would require new taxes to pay interest and principal.

He said he would ask the legislature in May to adopt a reso-

Parish To Buy Surplus Truck

The Ouachita legislative delegation has arranged for the purchase by the Ouachita Parish Police Jury of a surplus fire truck to be used in parish fire-fighting and civil defense work.

In a joint announcement Friday, Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George A. Wood said the jury would get a truck valued originally at $36,000 for $500.

Parish officials will pick up the truck in Baton Rouge in the next few days, they said.

Assisting in arrangements for the purchase were Sheriff Baily Grant and John Ensminger, ward 10 police juror.

Canadian Asks 'Pause' In Air Strikes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada urged Friday night a "pause" in retaliatory air strikes against the North Vietnamese as the first step toward bringing peace to the Southeast Asian hot spot.

Pearson, in remarks prepared for the Founder's Day dinner of Temple University, said, "There does appear to be at least a possibility that a pause in such air strikes against North Viet Nam at the right time might provide the Hanoi authorities with an opportunity, if they wish to do so, to inject some flexibility into their policy without appearing to do so as the direct result of military pressure."

"If such a suspension took place for a limited time, then the rate of incidents in South Viet Nam would provide a fairly accurate way of measuring its usefulness and the desirability of continuing it," he added.

"Aggressive action by North Viet Nam to bring about a Communist 'liberation' (which means Communist rule) of the South must end."

He proposed also that the United Nations enlarge its Mekong River project for economic and social improvement in the Southeast Asia area.

He said with this "great international development project, hope with a cease-fire followed by political negotiations, with the countries in the area given an international guarantee of neutrality and assurance of aid for peaceful development, then the danger, the destruction and distress of the present hour might be replaced with peace, hope and progress."

Bring Own Cash Theme Of Party Given By Powell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Friends of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell put on a bring-your-own-money party Friday night to help the controversial lawmaker pay a $52,000 libel judgment.

The price of admission was stiff. It was understood that each guest was paying $50 for the privilege of showing up at a Washington restaurant.

Asked about the party, Powell said he had no details. But the man behind it was known to be jazz musician Lionel Hampton.

The judgment against Powell stemmed from a suit by a Harlem, N.Y., woman. Powell had described her as a police "bagwoman" — someone who was collecting bribes charged by police for illegal protection of a racket.

Powell made the charge on a New York television station, but claimed congressional immunity because it was a repetition of statements he had made on the House floor.

Powell took his case to the Supreme Court, but it refused to review a lower court decision.

Until Friday, Powell faced a $262,000 payment. But in New York, Superior Court Justice Charles A. Loretto set aside a $210,000 judgment.

The judge attached one string, however. He said his order would stand only if Powell appeared in court to contest the charge that he had conspired to avoid payment of the original libel award by transferring property in Puerto Rico.

He urged Louisiana people to "show we don't lie down in the streets and block traffic . . . and carry on that kind of clapping."

Bond Issue Election

Cost Of School Expansion Cited

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and last in a series of articles on the $6-million bond issue election April 13 proposed by the City School Board for expansion and improvements.)

SAM HANNA

Political Editor

The City School Board's proposed $6-million expansion program will cost Monroe property owners a maximum of six mills.

Supt. Van D. Odom explained that if the city sells the bonds at an interest rate of 3.75 percent it would require a six-mill increase to cover the costs.

"But based on the past bond sales here, we believe the city will get a better interest rate than 3.75 and if so the bond issue may not cost property owners as much as six mills," Odom said.

"However, in fairness to the public, we are projecting the cost at a maximum of six mills, Odom said. "We are not going to mislead the people who have supported our school system for so many years."

Property owners will go to the polls April 13, from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m., to vote on the following program to appear on the ballot as just one proposition.

PROGRAM

1. Southside high school, $2,250,000. 2. Addition of 86 classrooms, $1,125,000. 3. Two new elementary schools, $700,000. 4. Expansion of physical education and stadium facilities at present high schools, $565,000.

5. Equipment and furnishings for all projects, $450,000. 6. Air conditioning of present high school auditoriums, $140,000. 7. Air conditioning of other present facilities, $750,000. 8. Legal expenses of bond issue, $20,000.

Absentee voting has begun and will continue through Tuesday, April 6.

In explaining the costs of the program, Odom pointed out that homeowners are exempt from school taxes on the first $2,000 of their property assessment.

"If the assessment on your home is more than $2,000, your cost will be $6 per $1,000 on the amount above $2,000," Odom said.

stated.

Monroe property owners are paying 18 mills on schools now, but the board proposed the increase in students since 1958.

"The Federal Bureau of the Census indicates that school enrollment will continue to increase for a considerable number of years," Odom said.

The proposal must carry a majority of popular votes as well as assessment value. A man and his wife can vote a split ballot if they wish.

The bonds will run for 25 years.

Odom pointed out that the city was in "excellent shape" in regards to bonded indebtedness to hand an additional $6 million in bonds.

"According to the latest information furnished us by the State Department of Education," he said. "There are only three school systems whose mileage for bonded indebtedness is less than that of the Monroe City Schools."

The system's bonded indebtedness, as of last month, amounts to $3,789,000, including four bond issues dating back to 1929. That was the Neville High School bond program that will expire in 1969. A 1950 bond issue expires in 1975 and so does a bond program passed in 1955.

Engineer Here
Is Transferred

Vernon C. (Buck) Parker, regional engineer for the State Board of Health, is being transferred to New Orleans this week.

Parker, who has been working as regional engineer for the 26 northern parishes of the Division of Public Health Engineering, will go to the board's central office in the Crescent City.

Beginning April 15, Parker will be assistant chief of the division's section on occupational health and safety, and he will also serve as administrative assistant to the technical secretary of the Louisiana Air Control Commission.

Parker will be among several other health officers from this area to attend a meeting of the Louisiana and American Public Health Associations in New Orleans beginning Tuesday.

Charles E. Bradshaw, public health engineer and assistant regional engineer, will temporarily take over Parker's duties. Another regional engineer, Perry V. Watson Jr. will officially take over this post about June 1. He is presently working on his master's degree at the University of Oklahoma. Bradshaw will be Watson's assistant when he returns.

It's Official Now

U.S. Air Power In Viet Nam Gets Free Fighting Status

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — For the first time in the Vietnamese war, U.S. planes and helicopters are free to attack the Viet Cong more or less when and how they see fit. For years, American aviation here had been operating in a kind of shadow status.

Everyone knew that American helicopter and fighter pilots were flying daily combat missions, hacking at Viet Cong concentrations, and getting shot at and killed. But it wasn't official.

More often than not, American fighter pilots were flying planes with Vietnamese air force markings. One of the two seats in the planes always had to be filled with a Vietnamese, even if the Vietnamese was only a mail clerk. This was to preserve the image in case of a fatal crash that the Vietnamese had been doing the flying and the American merely was an adviser.

American planes and helicopters, at least in theory, had to wait before striking anything for a Vietnamese spotter to mark the target with a smoke grenade. Unless a mission was requested and authorized by Vietnamese, it could not be flown.

All this has changed since Feb. 7 — the date of the first bombing of North Viet Nam in the current series.

For the first time, U.S. Air Force jet combat planes began flying actual strikes inside South Viet Nam. Overnight, the U.S. air force insignia on almost all propeller-driven fighters were replaced with U.S. Air Force markings.

Air Force raids still must nominally be approved by Vietnamese, but it is much easier and faster now. For all practical purposes, the Vietnamese and American military leaders here are a joint command working out of the same offices at every level — particularly in the air operations center.

American reticence about openly taking part in the Vietnamese air war based on fears of international repercussions and possibly a propaganda backlash in Viet Nam itself. For one thing, the 1954 Geneva convention that ended the French Indochina war ruled that foreign troops could not fight in either North or South Viet Nam.

Call For Ideas

British Seek Out Solution For Asia

LONDON (AP) — Britain has invited 11 governments concerned with Indochina's future to submit ideas on how the war in Viet Nam should be ended. British diplomats in Peking and Hanoi tried formally to arrange early meetings for Patrick Gordon Walker with Red Chinese and North Vietnamese leaders. Gordon Walker, one-time foreign secretary, is due to fly to the area in about 10 days. These moves were part of a British push for peace that has the backing of President Johnson's administration.

The initiative Friday by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government came as British, Indian and other officials claimed — without providing firm evidence — that Communist North Viet Nam may be softening its terms for peace talks.

Previously Hanoi and other Red Capitals, had demanded total American withdrawal from Viet Nam as their price for attending a conference. But President Ho Chi Minh and his North Vietnamese fellow leaders are being portrayed widely by a variety of people now as being prepared to meet without pre-conditions.

Such an attitude would conform exactly with the terms of a peace appeal issued Thursday by 17 nonaligned states whose representatives met recently in Belgrade.

Britain acted in her old role as a cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference that produced an agreement to end the Indochinese civil war. The other cochairman, the Soviet Union, declined to be associated with the British move in seeking the views of the Geneva conference governments. The Russians have stood pat on their position that any cease-fire and political negotiations are primarily the concern of the two chief contenders, meaning North Viet Nam and the United States.

• Britain's call took the form of a message signed by Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart.

The British cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina has noted with grave concern the dangerous state of international tension now existing in connection with Viet Nam," it said in part.

"Accordingly he invites governments-members of the 1954 conference, and the governments represented on the international control commission, to furnish him with a statement of their views on the situation in Viet Nam and, in particular, on the circumstances in which they consider a peaceful settlement could be reached."

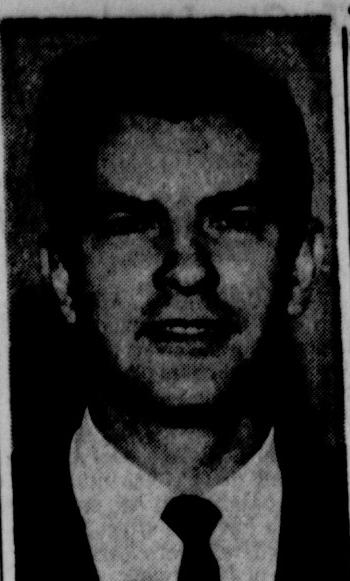

The governments represented at Geneva beside Britain were: the United States, France, the Soviet Union, Red China, Cam-

Accreditation Team To Visit Louisiana Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's School of Education will be visited by a six-member state accreditation team Monday through Wednesday.

Purpose of the visit is to evaluate the program in teacher education and to determine whether the School of Education will be recommended to the Louisiana State Board of Education for continued approval for the developing of teachers.

The committee will review the school's self study, visit various stations where student teaching is done, talk to students and professors, review the training and experience of the staff, evaluate the organization of the School of Education and review the school's facilities.

This is the second time Louisiana Tech's School of Education has been evaluated by a state committee. The period of evaluation usually covers five years.

Members of the team are James Sylvest, Louisiana State University; M. Levele Haynes, Northeast Louisiana State College; Zeki Lowe Loflin, University of Southwestern Louisiana; Othel E. Lovell, Jr., Nicholls State College; G. W. Nesom, Northwestern State College, and James Delee of the State Department of Education.

Chileans Quit Hunt For 'Quake Victims

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The government halted efforts Friday to recover more bodies from the earthquake-buried mining village of El Cobre. At least 120 bodies will remain buried under the mass of earth and copper mine refuse that crashed onto the village last Sunday.

About 200 bodies had been dug out of the earth and wreckage, 11 of them discovered by a specially trained dog, when the National Health Service ordered the digging stopped because of a health hazard. The service already had vaccinated thousands in the quake-ravaged areas of the country against typhus.

The Ministry of Interior said per cent of the city's buildings damaged. The government estimated that $40 million will be needed for reconstruction of homes in Valparaiso alone.

President Eduardo Frei is misquoted in a story published by a government newspaper which quoted him to the effect that Chile should handle her own reconstruction and not ask other countries.

No Oyster Roast Causes Dispute

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — It was unfair labor practice to cancel an oyster roast for employees after a majority voted for union representation, the National Labor Relations Board charged Friday.

The 5th Regional Office filed the charge against Dauphin Fabricators, saying it "eliminated a company benefit, to wit, an oyster roast."

King Calls For Broader Boycott

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. called Friday for an immediate halt to industrial expansion in Alabama and said he would urge spreading an economic boycott to investment funds and consumer products if our efforts do not meet with a good faith response."

King said the expansion of the three-prong economic boycott would depend on "changes which occur within the state."

"This program of escalated economic withdrawal is designed to do no more and no less than to fulfill those basic requirements of human rights for all citizens in Alabama as we have so long, so long struggled and died for," King told a press conference.

"This is no attempt to destroy the economy of the State of Alabama."

"Rather, it is an attempt to breathe life and health into that economy by making it possible for the men of conscience and social responsibility to assert themselves and lead their state out of the clutches of racism, ignorance and injustices."

The 36-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner announced details of the boycott, kept secret until Friday at the end of a 1½-day meeting of the 38-member executive board of his Southern conference.

Their complaints were aired at a hearing here to set the crude oil production allowances for May and June.

Meneefe said he would not announce the new allowances until next Wednesday, allowing him time to analyze the marketing situation in the northern two-thirds of Louisiana.

A Placid Oil Co. spokesman told the commissioners his firm can find no buyers for 4,000 barrels of its current daily output. An Ashland Oil and Refining Co. representative said his firm could not sell 20,000 barrels of its daily supply.

The California Co. proposed that the limit remain at 33 per cent of 1953 production. Tidewater Oil Co. and Continental Oil Co. both recommended it be cut to 30 per cent. Humble proposed 31 per cent, while Sun, Gulf and Shell Oil Co.'s suggested a 32 per cent.

The allowable for March and April, 33 per cent, amounts to 1,456,275 barrels a day.

Industry sources here predicted Meneefe will reduce the allowables for the next two months because of the surplus of crude already in storage.

Rayville Man Gets Suspended Sentence Here

Pleading guilty to negligent homicide, a Rayville man was given a suspended sentence of three years in the state penitentiary by Judge Jesse S. Heard, presiding over the Fourth District Court Friday.

Genva Thompson, 407 3rd, Rayville, had been slated for trial Wednesday on the negligent homicide count.

In other action, Judge Heard reset the trial of Sam J. Rufino, Monroe man charged with the theft of $4,343.89, for July 7. He was set for trial Monday.

Ode William Jarvis, Rt. 2, Columbia, pleaded not guilty to counts of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and driving with no driver's license. His trial date was set at April 30.

Several other cases involving minor violations were also handled.

To Give Lowdown

Perez Will Talk About Voting Bill

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Leander H. Perez, renewing his attack on the new vote bill, Friday said he's going on statewide TV next week to give the lowdown to the public.

But the Louisiana segregationist added there's "no question" it will pass. And he said it's bound to have an effect on parishes where there are large number of Negroes.

He blasted the bill as "spite, hate, Communist-inspired legislation." It would trigger "another revolution, a second Reconstruction," Perez said.

"Do you know what the Negro is?" the Plaquemines Parish political chieftain asked a news conference. "Animals right out of the jungle."

"Passion. Welfare. Easy life. That's the Negro. And if you don't know that, you're naive."

The 73-year-old white-haired Perez said he would go on TV for 30 minutes next Tuesday night. He said he will appear in New Orleans, Shreveport, Lake Charles, Baton Rouge, Monroe and Lafayette.

An aide said the Plaquemines Parish Commission Council is footloose the bill. Perez is council president.

Perez, who testified at a Senate committee hearing in Washington Tuesday, denied withdrawing a charge the vote bill was a Communist plan. Among other things, he told senators the bill would give impetus to the Communist plan to infiltrate the South's Black Belt.

"I withdraw nothing," the fiery Perez said, pounding his desk so hard ashtrays shook.

"I didn't take back a damn thing . . . They didn't like to have the smell of communism rubbed in their nostrils. But I rubbed it in."

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who played a major role in drafting the legislation, told Perez the Communist charge was stupid.

LEANDER PEREZ of Plaquemines Parish told a press conference in New Orleans Friday that he will go on statewide television next week to give the lowdown on the President's voting bill. Perez called the voting plan Communist-inspired while testifying in Washington last Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto)

SPORTS PARADE

LSU Improves Under Corbett

By Keith Prince

Whether LSU realized it or not April Fool's Day should have been one of its most celebrated dates. In fact, it is getting to look more and more like the athletic fortunes of the Bengals in Baton Rouge owe more to a contract signed on April 1, 1955 than to any other in its present day era.

For it was this day, 11 years ago last Thursday, that James J. "Jim" Corbett — the Tigers' amazingly successful Athletic Director — began his job of leading the LSU program, now considered one of the most successful in America.

TO RELATE THE JOBS which come under the heading of Athletic Director at LSU is an impossible task, for they number in the hundreds. But to describe his post quickly picture in your mind a business executive-traveling salesman-publicity agent-sports fan. This is Jim Corbett.

Corbett was in Jonesboro Thursday night at the J-H basketball and track banquet doing what he does best — promoting athletics in general and LSU in particular. He is truly a dynamic personality and it is easy to see why he is so highly respected not only in SEC circles but by all connected with collegiate sports throughout the country.

To tell all that Corbett has accomplished for LSU and the state of Louisiana during his reign is impossible. To tell even half of what he has done is almost impossible.

Back in 1956 when Corbett began to turn the wheels for LSU, the Tigers were on an athletic budget of $150,000. And in that year they also went in the "red" for almost that same amount. Now, during the 1964-65 school year Louisiana State University has an athletic program which is run on more than one million dollars per year.

IT'S AN AMAZING STORY. But of course the big budget means nothing if it is not successful. To clarify this point Corbett said, "Our program not only supports itself each year, but we are proud to say that we made a tidy profit." He did not define "tidy" but then there is not much need to. It is a well known fact that LSU football is one of the largest industries in the state.

And Corbett stressed the fact that the program at Tigerland is definitely selfsupporting and does not cost the Louisiana taxpayers one penny. It is run principally on tickets sold at LSU home games. This in itself explains how much Corbett has done to put LSU at the top of the heap. When a school has such a great following that it can fill to overflowing a 67,500 stadium time and again, there has to be some guiding light that has made many correct decisions about finances, personnel, players, etc. . . The "light" at LSU is Jim Corbett.

Education And Athletics

"Thanks to your support," Corbett said at Jonesboro, "we can provide an education for 190 athletes each year with scholarships. One scholarship equals approximately $16,000 per year for a boy. We feel that we give each athlete a 'home away from home' which is, more time than not, actually better than the one they are accustomed to."

"SO YOU CAN SEE how important it is for us to make the right choice when we give a scholarship to a boy. We know we can't be right all of the time," he remarked, "but still we know we have to be right or we lose thousands of dollars. Perhaps, putting it on this mercenary basis, that sounds rather rash but you can see where we are out tremendously if he should not stay in school and help our program."

Here, Corbett brought out the importance of recruiting athletes who are good students. "It is obvious that we cannot afford to recruit a boy who has troubles with his grades in high school. This should be an incentive for all of you who want to play athletics in college. You must work hard in the classroom if you expect to have a chance in college."

To keep this "industry" running smoothly, Corbett probably does more traveling than Superman ever did. This real, live energy burner traveled over 200,000 miles last year in his duties as Athletic Director. Recently, he flew to Miami to make reservations for the LSU team when they play there Oct. 9, then went from there to Mexico City where he completed arrangements for a freshman contest there next fall, also on Oct. 9. And last year he was in Guatemala setting the stage for LSU's freshman cage club to play there — which it did. These are just isolated examples of how much traveling he does while serving LSU.

With his success as AD at LSU, Corbett has been asked to take part in numerous outside projects. He is past chairman of the NCAA Television Committee and is now entering his seventh year on that committee. He was recently named chairman of the NCAA College-Professional Relations Committee.

CONCERNING HIS POST with the College-Professional Relations Committee, we asked Corbett about the trouble which has come up concerning pros signing college football players before they complete their college eligibility. "I was in New York recently talking with the commissioners of both leagues (the NFL and AFL) and was gratified with the progress which has been made," Corbett said.

"Commissioner Pete Rozelle (NFL) and Joe Foss (AFL) have indicated that they want to co-operate with us in this matter and I believe we will have an important announcement to make about the situation within three weeks."

Of course, also while pushing LSU to greater heights Corbett has gained so much following that he is now being tutored as the next SEC Commissioner to replace Bernie Moore when he retires.

When asked about the possibilities of this, Corbett said, "First let's make clear the facts. Mr. Moore will be in office another year and possibly longer. However, a committee has been appointed to examine the situation and come up with a possible successor. If I should be among those mentioned, naturally I would consider it."

INCIDENTALLY, IT WAS CORBETT who ramrodded the plan to keep Moore in office "without regard to any set length of time." This indicates very strongly than Corbett is not openly seeking the office or trying to clear a path for his own advancement at the present time.

He says emphatically, "I am obligated to LSU and my every effort is in trying to improve all phases of the athletic program at the University. As for the Commissioner's post I will say that I am not interested in it at all under its present setup."

"At present," Corbett said, "I am about to launch a program at LSU which will provide us with a stronger and better balanced athletic setup than ever before. I feel LSU will enter a new era of athletics when we have it sufficiently organized."

Trying to imagine LSU with a better athletic program than it has now is mighty hard to do. But when you consider the man who is in charge of such a task it doesn't look nearly as hard to accomplish.

Two Cagers Must Testify Before Jury

SEATTLE (AP) — The government dropped a bribery conspiracy charge Friday against two Seattle University basketball stars, Charlie Williams and Peilar Phillips. They had been accused in a point shaving case.

Asst. U.S. Atty Gary D. Gayton said he plans to subpoena the two players to testify before a federal grand jury here next Wednesday.

The government did not drop its complaint against Leo Casale, 24, Chicago night club operator.

The dismissal order was signed on Gayton's motion by U.S. District Court Judge William T. Beeks.

Casale and the two Seattle U. players were arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in connection with the Su-Idaho basketball game won here Jan. 22 by Seattle 89-2.

22 by Seattle 89-72.

Williams, team captain, and Phillips, a guard, were originally accused of conspiring with Casale to shave points in the Idaho game.

Phillips said in an interview Friday afternoon that the government's action came as a surprise to him. On advice of his lawyer, Richard Kane, he declined to say whether he would be willing to testify against Casale.

"I hold no bitterness toward anyone, least of all toward Seattle University," Phillips said. He said he would like to continue his education, but might not be able to return to school for a while because he has to support his family. Phillips' wife is expecting their first child.

Williams was not available for comment.

"I plan to subpoena Williams and Phillips before the grand jury," Gayton said, "and there is a possibility of others being indicted, but no more players."

Casale has been ordered to appear here next Friday under a U.S. District Court order.

Williams and Phillips were arrested Feb. 27. They were expelled from the university for failure to report a bribe offer. Their attorney said they had intended to plead innocent if the case was tried.

Another Seattle U. player, center L. J. Wheeler, was expelled from the university on the grounds that he knew about the matter but did not report it. Wheeler was not accused of any other connection with the case.

McNeese Drops Indian Golfers In Medal Play

Northeast State and McNeese tried something in their dual golf match here Friday, medal play instead of the usual match play. McNeese adapted better to the change than did the Indians, winning the match with a team score of 293 to Northeast's 307.

Sophomore Pat O'Brien led the Cowboys to the victory with a one-under-par 69. Two other Pokes, Gary Hoffpauir and Frank DiGeorge, had the next best rounds, 74, over the Bayou DeSiard Country Club course.

Best for the losing Indians was Henry Hinkle's 74 while Mark Womack turned in a 76, Raymond Winn a 77 and John Garrett a 79 to complete the Northeast scores.

The other McNeese golfer, Mike O'Brian, had a 76.

Northeast Coach Wallace Harson said he planned to play several more dual matches by medal play since the annual Gulf States Conference tournament is decided on that basis.

The loss was Northeast's first in dual competition since opening the season with a 13-5 match-play victory over Arkansas A&M.

Northeast's golfers will meet Millsaps here Monday afternoon.

Deadline Is Set For Registering In Ball Leagues

Boys wishing to participate in the baseball program this summer in West Monroe must register at Confederate Park today between the hours of 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

Dixie Youth graduates must register for Dixie Boys League (ages 13-14) and Dixie Boys graduates must register for the Dixie Senior League (ages 15-17).

Today is the final day to register, according to Program Director Dan McClure.

Trying to imagine LSU with a better athletic program than it has now is mighty hard to do. But when you consider the man who is in charge of such a task it doesn't look nearly as hard to accomplish.

A SLIM, trim Billy Casper does a bit of guidance with his putter on the 8th hole during Friday's second round of the Greater Greensboro Open Golf

Tourney. Casper is tied with Sam Snead with a 5-under-par 137. (AP Wirephoto)

Five-Under-Par

Snead, Casper Take Lead At Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Sam Snead, a seven-time winner here, and Billy Casper, down to a trim 190 pounds, moved into the 36-hole lead of the $65,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament Friday with five-under-par 137 totals.

Snead, who won the inaugural here in 1938 before Casper had reached his seventh birthday, added a three-under-par 69 to his opening round 68. Casper had one of the day's two 67 rounds to go along with an opening 70.

Howie Johnson, the other 67 shooter, moved into third place, a shot off the pace at 138.

Masters champion Arnold Palmer survived the 36-hole cut, but was well back at 146, one stroke back of two other strugglers, Gary Player and Tony Lema.

Snead, at 52, is playing only his third tournament of the year. He termed his game a little jerky, adding, "I just hope the putting holds up until the rest of the game smooths out. I played a little better from tee to green."

Snead had four birdies and two bogies, one when he missed the green, the other when he three-putted. But he knocked in a 40-foot birdie putt on No. 11 and a 45-footer on the next hole.

Casper, who had to withdraw from the Jacksonville, Fla., Open two weeks ago when he suffered an allergic reaction, says he now feels better than he ever did. He's shed some 30 pounds since last August by avoiding 10 food items to which he was found to be allergic.

By Casper's count, he has missed the top 10 only three times in about 25 tournaments.

The highlight of his round over the 7,000-yard, par 71 Sedgefield Country Club course was an eagle three on the 501-yard sixth. After using his driver twice, he had the ball 20 feet from the pin, about six feet off the green. He ran it into the cup with his putter.

Two more birdies gave him a three-under-par 33 for the front nine, which he played last. Starting on the 10th tee, he birdied the 12th and 13th holes each from 25 feet.

But the man regarded as one of the game's finest putters, five times missed from between five and seven feet.

Doug Sanders was disqualified for inadvertently signing a scorecard showing him with a par four on the second hole, whereas he had taken six on the hole. He signed for 71 and actually shot 73.

A score of 148 was required to qualify the low 70 scorers and ties for the last two days of play.

Johnson chipped and putted his way into contention. He missed six greens, but salvaged par five times. So well did he chip in his 35-32 round that the longest putt he made was an eight-footer. He used 26 strokes on the greens.

First day leader Tommy Aaron went without a birdie as he shot 75 to drop to 141.

Tribe In Baseball, Cinder Contests

Northeast State's baseball enforced inactivity for the Indians' team opens defense of its Gulf States Conference championship at Northwestern and the Indian track team takes on Mississippi State in a dual meet at Starkville, Miss., today.

The doubleheader at Natchitoches follows a week of rain.

Ouachita Gets Shutout Win Over Caldwell

COLUMBIA (Special) — Ouachita scored five runs in the third inning and rode the Indians' pitching of Jerry Howell to take a 6-0 victory over the Caldwell Spartans here Friday.

The win upset Ouachita's overall record to 3-3 and stood 1-3 in district play since the contest was not a district game. Caldwell fell to 2-1 for the year.

Wally Rugg led the Ouachita attack, which included only two hits, by getting a single, run-batted-in, and scored twice. Jimmy Hudson got the only other hit for the Lions.

Boone McCarty had the lone safety for Caldwell, a single.

Hudson started the wild third inning for the Lions off with a single to right and was moved to second when Howell reached first on a fielder's choice. The next batter, James Beach, sacrificed Hudson home from second to put the Lions ahead 2-0. They had scored a run earlier in the first.

The bunt had moved Howell to second and Rugg got on base with a fielder's choice. He later stole second and a walk to Skeeter Boyd loaded the bases. Alvin Parker reached first on an error, scoring Howell, and keeping the bases loaded. Rugg then scored on a wild pitch, with the other two runners advancing. Ken Peters walked next to load the bases again. Boyd scored on another wild pitch, both runners advancing again.

Corbin then sacrificed Parker from third with a fly to center, for the fifth run and a 6-0 lead.

The Lions play Airline in Bossier City Monday.

Letters Awarded

To 19 Students

At Harrisonburg

HARRISONBURG (Special) — Nineteen varsity students earned letter awards at Harrisonburg High School during the 1964-65 basketball season, it was announced by Coach Joe L. Green.

Included in this number were 16 players, two managers and one scorekeeper.

Girls who lettered were Janis Alexander, Cerre Lou Humble, Roberta Bartness, Nedda Reeves, Glenda Boothe, Martha Kendrick, Dianne Cassel, Linda Evans, (manager) and Celia Boothe, (scorekeeper).

OPHS Booster Club Will Hold Benefit Supper

Ouachita Parish High School Booster's Club fund raising Chicken spaghetti supper is slated for tonight at the High School cafeteria from 5 to 8 p.m.

Adults' admission will be one dollar and fifty cents for children. Proceeds will be used to purchase blazers for next year's athletic teams.

Ernie Hefferle Leaving Pitt To Join Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ernie Hefferle, an assistant coach of the University of Pittsburgh football team, is leaving Pitt to become offensive line coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, it was announced Friday.

Hefferle replaced Garrard (Buster) Ramsey, who resigned from the National Football League team's coaching staff last week.

McCullar has six. McCullar has their briefest pre-conference schedule in many years.

Coach George Luffey's club has only four games under its belt, winning a doubleheader from Austin College and splitting a pair with Nicholls State. The Indians have had three non-conference games rained out and their scheduled GSC twin bill opener with Southeastern here Wednesday was postponed until next Wednesday.

Luffey will start a pair of seniors, Dean Bounds and Bob Rachal, against Northwestern. Both hurried against Austin, left-handers Bounds winning a 5-1 decision and Rachal blanking the Kangaroos, 2-0, on one hit.

Northeast's trackmen will be favored to beat Mississippi State Saturday in a meet that will mark the return of Roger Morgan to hurdles competition. Morgan, NAIA high hurdles champ, injured leg in the National AAU Indoor Championships Feb. 20 and hasn't been able to hurdle since, although he has run flat races.

Unbeaten Ronnie Fountain and Dalton LeBlanc in the sprints, Cline Averett in the 440, Gayland LeBlanc in the 880, Robert Harviston and Bill White in the mile, Tom Brown in the two mile and Roger Mann and Fred Vogel in the hurdles are among the top Northeast entries in the individual track events.

Fountain, LeBlanc, Morgan and Vogel will probably run the 440 relay for the Tribe with Fountain, LeBlanc, Averett and Willis Delhomme in the mile.

In the field events, undefeated Tommy Slack in the javelin, Gary Walker in the discus, Jack McDougall in the high jump, McDougall and Mann in the long jump and John Linta and Paul Hobgood in the vault should pick up the major share of Northeast points.

Next Saturday the Indians compete in one of the season's top events, the Southwestern Relays.

Udall To Request Write Mansfield

Security Review
On Importing Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Stewart Udall announced Friday that he plans to recommend to President Johnson an immediate review of national security aspects of the residual oil import program leading up to withdrawal of controls.

Udall told a group of newsmen that he would already have recommended abandonment of all residual import controls if he had official assurance that national security was not involved.

Udall said he still has the authority to decide oil policy matters. This is under a 1963 order placing oil policy matters in Udall's hands to avoid any conflict of interest question since Johnson, as a Texan, comes from an oil state.

However, Udall explained that he does not have authority to make decisions on national security matters. This rests with Johnson as the Chief Executive.

Udall's meeting with newsmen came at the end of a hectic week on the residual oil problem.

Udall endeavored to explain why on Tuesday Lee White, White House counsel, turned down his plan to remove residual oil quotas in New England and Florida while leaving the controls intact in mid-Atlantic states.

Democrats Claim Vote Bill Narrow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight Democratic senators wrote Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, Johnson's Negro voting-rights bill is too limited in application.

"Discrimination is discrimination," they said in declaring that "any place it exists there is a federal responsibility to protect the right to vote."

They contended it would be a serious mistake for Congress to enact legislation providing protection "only in states where there has been massive discrimination as determined by a mechanical and somewhat indirect formula."

The letter is the latest in a series of demands from several quarters that the measure be broadened, at least to include parts of Texas, Florida, Arkansas and Tennessee.

The bill, as submitted by the President, would apply to states using literacy or similar voter qualification tests if less than half of the voting age population was registered or voted last November.

This would take in Alabama, Alaska, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Virginia, plus 34 counties in North Carolina and one each in Arizona, Idaho and Maine. Use of literacy or other spe-any opponent."

Bruton's statement was put into the record by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., at an unusual afternoon session. Ervin, presiding, was the only member witness. Ervin cited from figures compiled by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission and other sources in support of his position that no discrimination is practiced in North Carolina to keep Negroes from voting.

He Toils By Day, Kills At Night

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Who are the Viet Cong? His enemy pointblank and just the heavy forest.

He can fashion ingenious weapons from all manner of ordinary things, but often uses modern arms, too — captured American material, Soviet-designed carbines, Chinese recoilless cannon, Czech machine guns.

Many a VC is a master of terror tactics who picks his victims carefully — an unpopular civil servant in a fortified village, members of a Vietnamese soldier's family, a district chief, a Catholic priest, a teacher who refuses to teach Communist propaganda.

Outside the Communist leadership, few can say for sure how many Viet Cong guerrillas are fighting in the war. Estimates at the beginning of this year were in the neighborhood of 35,000 regulars and about 80,000 irregulars, but the VC recruits all the time in the areas he controls.

James Galanos For Feminity

By FLORENCE de SANTIS
James Galanos, the designer most often bracketed with Norman Norell as the creative heads of American fashion, declared after his spring opening, "I'm not designing for outer space, but for women here and now."

Thus declaring against the futuristic school of fashion represented by Andre Courreges in Paris and Rudi Gernreich in this country, Galanos proved his point with the softest collection he has ever shown.

Hisself originally a pioneer group of silk print suits, dresses were the stars of the collection. They looked so new again with their sashes and sleeves that the opening audience kept applauding them, praise that has long been rare for dresses.

Galanos doesn't make any fuss about hemlines. His day dresses are kneelength because of the full skirts, but many dinner dresses come just above the ankle.

PFC SHEILA DIANE RESTER

Gaiety In Accessory Assortment

By VIVIAN SCHOEN

Hats were as big as cartwheels and as small as snails this season at the Pitti Palace fashion showings — but never in between! Canessa designed skimming straw saucers for Forquet . . . there were concerto-pleated organza turbans by Ofelia for Valentino . . . spinning spider web sun hats in stiffened orange net at Naka, and muslin "cookinghouse" snoods by Canessa for Fabiani. Mariacarmen showed jaunty sailor caps, and Lo Scarabocchio stitch-brimmed sun hats. Gregoriana's hats were formed by bands of criss-crossed ribbons, while Antonelli showed beach hats with eyeglasses inserted.

In the wig-wiglet department, Medusa locks of gold beads from Cristianella contrasted with an impish black curl wig done by Claudio for Fabiani. There were bubbly bangs and soft waves by Filippo for Valentino, and the glamorous disorder of blonde, Marilyn Monroe hairdos by Beauty Club for Tiziani. An elegant chignon held in a lasso loop of hair was seen on a Mila Schoen model.

Verdant green is news for shoes come Spring and Summer of '65. Heels remain sturdy, but uppers are lower cut, instep bars abound, and there are lots of two-tones. Ken Scott designed thick-heeled, ankle strap sandals in bright patent leathers . . . Mariacarmen's sailor girl models strutted in high-heeled wedge shoes in grass-green and white. There were Trico's curly Turkish pumps . . . punched, brogue style strap shoes, low-cut and stocky heeled from both Fontana and renowned shoe designer lottes!

Woman Marine Wins Promotion On Graduation

Private First Class Sheila Diane Rester was among 56 young women from across the nation who made their debuts as woman marines at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., during Final Review ceremonies recently.

Sheila is the daughter of Mrs. Leatrice E. Rester of 2707 South Grand. She is a 1963 graduate of Neville High School.

PFC Rester was promoted meritoriously to her present rank as an honor graduate of recruit training in recognition of her exceptional ability in different phases of military life and for exceeding other recruits in different phases of recruit training.

She is presently on leave at home and will leave next week for her new assignment with Headquarters Battalion, Headquarters U.S. Marine Corps, Washington D.C.

The eight week training period for woman recruits included instruction in basic military subjects such as drill, first aid and personal standards, courtesy and customs and the uniform code of military justice. Instructions are also given in the administrative subjects of typing, business English, spelling, filing and correspondence practices.

Feragamo.

In jewelry, Micia's "one-ear" earring caused a few audience flurries! It was a shoulder-length dangle of flower petals. Jazzy swagged gold chain earrings by Luciana for Fabiani were worn with a severe grey flannel suit. Tita Rossi had a silk pom-pom bib necklace and drop earrings. More fun were a red crystal starfish necklace by Coppola and Toppo, and swinging silk bubble earrings at De Barentzen, who also showed a gorgeous jabot of silk rose petals.

The exotic touch was added by Nucci for Valentino with twisted bead bracelets joined to finger rings, across the back of the hand.

Some show-stoppers at the Pitti Palace that defy categorizing:

Baldini's printed chiffon plus fours, Avagold's camel-driver dress, bag-hemmed in back, curving up into mid-calf culottes in front. Also in the fun department were miniature Mackintosh beach coats, red checked by Glans, and Micia's entirely Mod collection of lacy stockings, short shifts, arty colors and all Barocco's bride topped them all in coin-spotted white net curtains and renounced shoe designer lottes!

What can I do?

Martin Adams

Dear Martin: Having tested this more than once, I feel I have the answer for you:

Take a dry soap-filled pad, dip it in 5 per cent vinegar yellow or white makes no difference) and after removing the top tray, scour the metal part the rollers roll on . . . this will remove the sediment caused from the minerals in your water. Once this builds up on a track, naturally nylon rollers, or any other kind, won't roll smoothly on it.

If you would like to test this first, remove the whole tray and run your finger along that track and see how rough it is. After using the above method, it will be smooth again.

Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER:

Dear Heloise:

After struggling with a jar for ten minutes, I hit upon the idea of using my rubber gloves. One twist and the lid was off.

Of course, this is only to be applied during the day when that man of yours isn't around! When he's home, we let him prove his masculinity by being entirely helpless. He takes off the lid (after about three tries), we thank him . . . and he feels that he's needed and we're still dependent on him.

His Helpless Housekeeper

Dear Heloise:

When laundering those black slacks that even the small boys seem to prefer — after repeated washings the color dulls or fades.

I prepare the washing machine and have the garments thoroughly wet, then to the water I add a package of black dye which has first been dissolved in a separate container.

The dye will not harm the washing machine when directions on the box are followed and the slacks will be clean and bright again.

A Reader

Dear Heloise:

Before I start to embroider, I thread some embroidery thread of each color on separate needles. This saves much time and energy.

Vickie Schabel

Dear Heloise:

The following is the way I remove the sour odor when baby spits up:

If the fabric will not be harmed by being dampened with some water. I wrap a finger in a washcloth and moisten it slightly with water. I dip this in baking soda and brush lightly over the area which has been damaged. The odor disappears immediately, along with the surface soil.

Barbara DePue

Dear Heloise: Can an old lady of 75 get into the act?

I wrap my green peppers in aluminum foil before I ever put them in the crisper drawer in my refrigerator.

Try it . . .

Mrs. Green

Dear Heloise: I have two girls; they each have a pretty umbrella, and I like to hang them in our stairway to the basement to keep them from getting dirty when not in use.

I put each umbrella in an old knee length sock and this keeps all dust and dirt off them.

When the girls use the umbrellas, they just leave the socks on the nails and put them back on the umbrellas when they are dry.

Medical Group Cautions About

Newest Toy Fad

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The skate-board is approaching the bicycle as the chief cause of children's falls, says the California Medical Association.

The association said, most injuries to children are caused by falls and bicycles stood almost alone as the chief culprit until the debut of the skate-board.

The medical group said the skate-board, a piece of wood about 5 inches wide and two feet long attached to roller skates, requires skill and concentration, so cars often will not be noticed until too late.

Parents were warned to confine children to driveways or other protected areas during learning periods.

Parents also were told that skate-boarding is not as easy as it looks.

A significant number of parents end up with an arm or leg in a cast after just one attempt at this hazardous fad," the association said.

WINDOW SHADE TIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here's a simple, do-it-yourself decorating trick from the Window Shade Manufacturers Association:

Paste appliques of floral motifs to your shades. If you use cut-outs from the left-over yardage of your curtain or upholstery material, you can create coordinated window beauty with an expensive custom look. A special adhesive insures permanent bond.

DEAR ABBY

37 Years Old And Through With Sex!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am tired of reading articles and columns saying that people are "sick" just because they don't go wild over sex. Tell me something, why do people keep pushing sex? Why didn't you tell that woman, whose husband lost interest in her, to leave the poor guy alone? She probably wore him out. I happen to be one of those people who couldn't care less about sex and I wouldn't change if I could. If you stop to think a minute, you will have to agree that half the world's problems stem from sex. To mention a few: Overpopulation, unwanted children, sex crimes, venereal disease and adultery. Besides sex can ruin your reputation quicker than anything else. I am not a bitter old maid. I am a 37-year-old married woman and the mother of two teenagers. And I am not locked up anywhere, so I think I'm normal. I wouldn't give you a nickel for sex and I am perfectly content.

NOT SEXY AND COULDN'T CARE LESS
DEAR NOT SEXY: You may be "perfectly content" — but how about your husband?

DEAR ABBY: I have had some experience in the matter of men losing interest in sex after having reached a certain age, so I think I am qualified to make a statement on the subject. Some men lose their youth at 50, and some at 60. But you can take my word for it, if any man over 60 tells you a different story, he is lying.

You are foolish to advise women whose husbands have lost interest in them to "get them to a doctor." No doctor on earth can help them. I am 72 years old and know more about life than you do. A doctor once told me that after a man reaches 60, he is all washed up in the "love" department. And so is a woman, no matter what anybody says. We accept the fact that as we get older our eyes grow dim, and our memory goes. For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, c/o News-Star.

Warm Invention Protects Face

CHICAGO (UPI) — The persons so sensitive to cold air that they stayed inside during winter "or even raw" weather, avoided through purchase if a heat mask kit, reports one manufacturer.

The kit includes a face mask of porous synthetic fiber, a heating element, and a battery rechargeable. It warms the air passing through it to 65 degrees. It was developed by Dr. Louis A. Terman of Chicago and is sold through Carmen Commodities Corp., which is headed by his brother, Sydney Terman.

The latter quoted a long list of well-known medical figures who said the "Weather Guard Heat Mask," priced at $22.50, can be useful to persons afflicted with a variety of breathing lung and heart ailments. Some

Jackson Parish Beauty Pageant Slated Tonight

JONESBORO (Special) — The annual Jackson Parish Beauty Pageant, sponsored by the Jonesboro-Hodge Jaycees will be held tonight at 7:30 in the local High School Gymnasium.

Nine local girls will compete for the title of Miss Jackson Parish, with the winner representing Jackson Parish in the Miss Louisiana Pageant in Monroe in July.

The contestants are Shirley Parker, Pat Hogg, Elaine Blalock, Jerry Tolar, Linda Kay Davis, Nelda Culpepper, Phyllis Tudor, Bettye Oglesby and Kathy Edwards.

In addition to the usual awards, this year's winner will be presented with a $300.00 scholarship by the Jaycees.

Master of ceremonies for the pageant will be Joe Sheppard of Ruston.

The judges panel will be composed of Mrs. Dixie Ware, Monroe, Professor Lloyd P. Blackwell, Ruston and Russ Galpin, Shreveport.

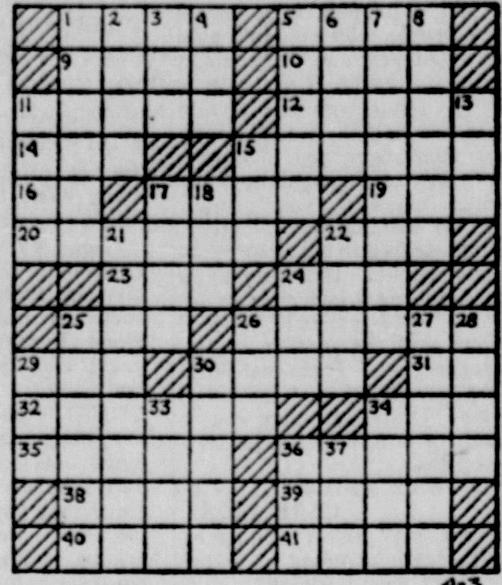

Music will be furnished by Frank Merritt, organist, Gibsonland.

Added attractions for this year's pageant will be the appearance of Miss Lynn Baughman, Louisiana Peach Festival queen, who will perform, and a former Miss Jackson Parish, Karen Keith, who presently holds the title of Miss Show Boat and who also will appear at the pageant.

State Begins Job Training Needs Survey

A study to determine training needs and job opportunities in Louisiana is being conducted now, according to Norman E. Gillis, chief of research and analysis for the Louisiana Division of Employment Security.

The State Board of Education allocated funds from a special legislative appropriation for salaries and interviewers. The survey is being done in connection with the board. At the present time, there are five field interviewers in the state who will be joined by six staff members from the Employment Security administrative office to work on the survey.

A cross-section sample will be taken by the interviewers of Louisiana industrial employers for detailed information on present employment and probable future needs in occupations not requiring a college degree but where more than a public school education is needed.

The information gleaned from the survey will be used by the area vocational-technical and trade schools to determine what changes will need to be made in curricula.

Retreat Slated At Church Here

LONDON (AP) — The United States is committed in Viet Nam "for the duration," Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in an interview recorded for broadcast Friday night.

"I think you can assume without any question that the American public, the American Congress, the American government, are committed to South Viet Nam for the duration," he told the British Broadcasting Corp.

"I think you can assume without any question that the American public, the American Congress, the American government, are committed to South Viet Nam for the duration," he told the British Broadcasting Corp.

"Whatever happens?" asked interviewer James Mossman.

"That is the point," replied Rusk.

The retreat is for all men 18 years and over.

Of North Viet Nam, Rusk said: "We're asking for them to stop shooting. Now, if there are those who call that unconditional surrender, then I can't agree with them. I think that's an abuse of the language."

Hurt's Research

17 Doctors Protest Report On Tobacco

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seventeen physicians protested to a Senate committee Friday that the surgeon general's report linking cigarettes and lung cancer was hurting the cause of basic cancer research.

Three doctors testified in person at a hearing on proposals to require a health warning on cigarette package labels.

Fourteen others sent written statements to be read at the committee's final public hearing.

Some attacked the assumption that cigarette smoking is a major causative factor in cancer of the lungs. But all said that even if it were proved to be true, the public assumption that cigarettes cause lung cancer hurts the cause of basic research into the nature of the disease.

"I feel that a grave disservice is being rendered the study of the disease by the assumption that the cause has been found," said Dr. Raymond J. Barrett, a surgeon at Wayne State University School of Medicine, Detroit.

Dr. Hiram Langston, a chest surgeon at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, said all available evidence "leads to me to conclude that we still don't know the cause or causes of cancer" of the lung.

Dr. Bernice C. Sachs of Seattle, president of the American Medical Women's Association, said the cause of lung cancer has not been scientifically established. But she said she doubted that a warning label on cigarettes would discourage anyone from smoking.

Too much A for youngsters is suspected when they begin to lose appetite and weight and become irritable, with generalized itching of the skin. Hard, tender lumps may develop in the extremities and pain may be so severe the child refuses to stand or walk. The skin is dry, the lips crack, and the hair begins to fall out. The liver enlarges and some victims are jaundiced.

Hypervitaminosis A is not an acute process. Symptoms occur 6 to 15 months after the individual begins taking too much (40 to 50 times the usual amount). In contrast, improvement is rapid, often within three days after the vitamin is stopped.

Babies are poisoned more rapidly. There is vomiting, insomnia, and signs of agitation. Bulging of the head takes place because of a temporary increase in the amount of fluid in the brain.

Hypervitaminosis D is more easily acquired because only four to five times the usual dose is needed to produce symptoms.

There is a decrease in appetite, nausea, headache, drowsiness, and vomiting or diarrhea. More serious signs develop when calcium is withdrawn from the bones, enters the blood, and is deposited in the heart muscle, blood vessels, kidney, lungs, and other tissues.

Bones also soften with loss of calcium. The system returns to normal as soon as the vitamin D supply is curtailed.

Hypervitaminosis A or D are conditions that need not exist because there are no diseases requiring continuous treatment with large amounts of these products.

Most of us get along without the need for vitamin supplements by eating a well-balanced diet.

BOTHERSOME CRAMPING

V. P. writes: Is there a cure for muscle spasms? Are they serious?

REPLY

Cramping usually occurs when muscles are overextended, injured, or irritated. Poor circulation also plays a role, as well as disorders of the nervous system. Heat and massage are helpful, as well as quinine and muscle relaxant drugs.

The cause must be found when cramps are recurrent and bothersome.

COLDS AND CATS

M. S. writes: I'm a singer. A month ago I had a cold and have been left with a bronchial cough. I have a peppy cat that I like to play with a lot. My friends tell me the pet's hair could be responsible for my bronchial condition. Is there anything to this?

REPLY

Yes, provided you are sensitive to animal dander and the coughing stems from an allergic bronchitis.

LOW TEMPERATURE

C. S. writes: I'm 82. Is it natural for older people to have a subnormal temperature?

REPLY

Yes, especially when the older person is poorly nourished or lives in an inadequately heated home or apartment.

ANY TIME

Mrs. H. P. writes: Does constipation occur during pregnancy?

REPLY

Yes—before, during, or after. It can be corrected with diet or mild laxatives.

U Thant Backs Cyprus Mediator Despite Turkey

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant rejected Friday a Turkish declaration that Galo Plaza Lasso should be dismissed as U.N. mediator for Cyprus.

Thant was replying to Turkish charge that Plaza, former president of Ecuador, had exceeded his authority in making recommendations for a Cyprus settlement in a report issued this week.

Thant told Orhan Erarp, Turkish ambassador to the United Nations in a letter, that "I would like to inform you that I do not consider that any action by me at this juncture affecting the status of the mediator is called for."

Thant added that he wanted to "appeal most earnestly to your government not to insist on the extreme position that the services of the mediator have come to an end."

"I take this liberty only because I fear that this might well mean the end, for all practical purposes, of the mediation effort itself, thus greatly diminishing hopes for a peaceful solution of the Cyprus problem," Thant wrote.

Court Session Docket Is Heavy In West Monroe

Battery and driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages charges headed the heavy docket of West Monroe City Court Friday, presided over by Judge John McCormick.

Fred F. Mitchell, 39, of 904 Natchitoches St., West Monroe, was fined a total of $445 and court costs on counts of aggravated battery, drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon and drunk and disturbing the peace. Fined $55 and court costs was Ernest Gene Lawrence of 110 Hodge St., West Monroe. He was charged with simple battery.

Eddie Davis of 801 Coleman Ave., West Monroe, was fined $300 and court costs on counts of simple battery, using loud and profane language and drunk and disturbing the peace. Charges of simple battery against Charles Head of 1002 Wood St., West Monroe, and Ester Head, same address, were nolle prossed.

Robert Smith of Searcy, Ark., was fined $500 and court costs for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and reckless driving. Receiving $300 plus court cost fines for DWI were Troy Stewart of 809 Cypress St., West Monroe, and Russell R. Colleman of 101 Louisville St., Monroe. A fine of $305 and court costs was levied against James W. T. Thomas of Quitman, Gerald W. Albritton of 404 Calcutta St., West Monroe, was fined a total of $325 and court costs on counts of DWI and reckless driving.

Reckless driving cases and dispositions were Roy R. Franks of Calhoun; Turner C. Lee of 112 Plum St., West Monroe; Aubrey L. Griffing of 203 Mitchell St., West Monroe; and Curtis Myers of 1214 Joe Bill St., West Monroe; all $25 and court cost fines; Gordon A. Bernice of 609 No. 5th St., West Monroe; John J. McGraw of Rayville; Luther C. Powell of Calhoun; Jimmie Lawson of 126 Magnolia St., Monroe; and Jewell A. Wright of 1800 So. 1st St., Monroe; all $20 and court cost fines.

Speeding cases and court dispositions included Gordon A. Bernice of 609 No. 5th St., West Monroe, $25 and court costs; Roy D. Herd of Rt. 2, Box 192, Columbia, $20 and costs; Albert Roberson of 3402 Brown St., Monroe and Thomas G. Knight of 1510 McMillan Rd., West Monroe, both $15 and costs; Peter J. Torratoe of 1406 Beard St., and James R. White of 110 Height St., West Monroe, both $10 and costs; Jerry L. Luginbill of 3507 W. Ferry Rd., West Monroe and Clyde Foster of Madison, Ala., $5 and costs.

There were 19 cases of minor violations also handled in West Monroe city court Friday.

Injuries Minor As Cars Collide

Ruth B. Smith, 51, of 909 So. 9th St., Monroe, received minor injuries Friday when the car she was driving collided with an auto driven by William Tucker, 76, of Rayville, at 8:30 a.m. at the intersection of Orange and So. 7th St., according to police reports. The Smith woman was taken to St. Francis Hospital by Mulhearn ambulance where she was treated and released.

Also receiving minor injuries in an accident Friday at 12:05 p.m. was Stanley R. Palowsky, 52, of Rt. 4, Box 319, Monroe. An auto driven by Palowsky was involved in a collision with a car driven by Lewis Walker, 46, of Rayville, at the intersection of So. 9th and Washington Sts., according to police. Police reports showed that Palowsky sought treatment from his doctor.

Reckless driving cases and dispositions were Roy R. Franks of Calhoun; Turner C. Lee of 112 Plum St., West Monroe; Aubrey L. Griffing of 203 Mitchell St., West Monroe; and who have finished high school, they argued, to deprive them of a college education because of fees being too high.

The colleges are the only agencies of the state, Rayburn said, "where there are no provisions for the needy . . . the committee, said he told the LSU board he favored "a reasonable just as cheaply as the poorest fee increase."

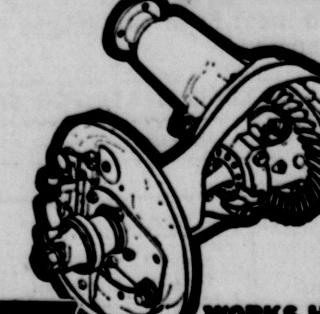

man's child."

Another key man in the McKeithen administration, Sen. James Mar Adcock of Monroe, appeared at the LSU board sessions Friday. Adcock, chairman of the legislative budget committee, said he told the LSU board he favored "a reasonable just as cheaply as the poorest fee increase."
